Notes and Comments.

ON June 16, one was baptized at Seward, Kansas, by Jac. W. Beer.

A SISTER in renewing her subscription to the EVANGELIST says she can't get along without the paper—she must have it.

TEN dollars for liquor to every ten cents for missions, is the present rate of proportion. Some converted? people need conversion.

THERE are still several hundred each of the Brethren and Youths Quarterlies left. All orders up to date have been filled, and we are prepared to fill others as they come in. Every school in the brotherhood should use these quarterlies.

BROTHER J. O. Talley reports an all-day meeting of the King's Children, held at the Bethlehem church near Milledgeville, Ill. The meeting was largely attended and great interest was manifested. Closed with communion services, which proved a great spiritual feast.

SISTER Amanda Strayer of Modeltown, New York, desires to know whether there is a Brethren church in the vicinity in which she lives. Will some one who knows, please inform her through the EVANGELIST? Where and what is the nearest Brethren church to the above named place?

BROTHER J. M. Rittgers, in a letter says: We are getting along finely at Marion, Ind. Eight have been added to the church at that place since my last report. On last Sabbath we had a solemn service, and baptized five persons in the presence of a large congregation. Will write more soon.

It is safe to say that when the public press is right that public sentiment will be right also. The Christian Evangelist gives its hearty approval of a great convention held in London, England, in these words:—Of great conventions which have been assembled in the interest of reforms in the past, none excel in importance that which was in session all of last week in Memorial Hall, London, England. It was the World's Christian Temperance Union. The purpose of this convention and the historic associations of Memorial Hall made it a fitting place for such an assembly. Within its walls were gathered women from all parts of the world, in different languages speaking in defense of their homes, their children and their lands. Actuated by a holy ambition they met that they might take counsel together upon methods for the betterment of humanity. The two most prominent women of the convention were Miss Francis E. Willard and Lady Henry Somerset. It had dawned upon these two consecrated women in their efforts to lead the temperance hosts on to victory, that nothing short of a world wide movement would meet the issues that were before them, or do the work needed. To these two women, therefore, belong the honor of the conception and production of the recent remarkable convention. The movement not only added strength to the cause of temperance in England, but will give new life to it in all countries. No single reform movement bears upon its bosom greater good to a greater number of people, and we trust, therefore, that this is the one which is to bring deliverance to the world from the rum traffic, and that speedily.

SISTER Mary W. Sayger of Akron, Ind., says: "We like your quarterlies very well and think all Brethren schools should use them; and your paper for the little folks is all that could be required." Thank you, sister. Your words of encouragement are greatly appreciated.

NOTICE.—I want the names and addresses of all the Sunday-school superintendents of the Brethren church in Indiana. Will the superintendent or pastor send me such information, or see that it is done as soon as possible?

A RELIGIOUS paper published in St. Louis, Mo., has among other mottoes, these.—

The protection of the home and the destruction of the saloon versus the protection of the saloon and the destruction of the home.

For the right against the wrong,
For the weak against the strong;
For the poor who've waited long
For the brighter age to be.
For the truth, 'gainst superstition,
For the faith, against tradition,
For the hope, whose glad fruition
Our waiting eyes shall see.

DON'T you know that there are church members who are afraid to ask the Lord to go with them to their places of business, for fear he will take away their prosperity?
